Successful Contestants Will Compete With Other Teams
at State Fair.

Competing Juvenile Canning
Teams Selected From 13 Different Schools.

First honors in the children's war garden canning demonstration, held this week at 311 South Seventeenth street, were won by four girls. They are in degree of excellence: Mary Elizabeth Haney, representing Mason school; Anna Koenig of Lake school, Gladys Pottinger of Central Park and Jean Montgomery of Walnut Hill, chosen alternate.

The demonstrations have been directed by Miss Sarah Canfield, canning expert, and Joe Ihm, garden director. Prof. G. W. Hood of the horticultural department of the state university awarded the honors at a children's picnic this afternoon at Riverview park.

Colored Children Compete.

A team of colored children was also selected from the best contestants. They are Inez Battles of Howard Kennedy school, Josephine Ratliff, Clifton Hill school and Margaret Bell, Kellom school.

These successful contestants will go to Lincoln next Thursday to compete with other teams from Nebraska at the state fair. Mrs. Julius Rosenzweig has been selected chapron.
