

School at Hospital Boon to Studies

When Keith McGill returns to the third grade at Howard Kennedy School this winter he probably will surprise some of his schoolmates with his progress.

Keith admits he was kind of shaky on some of his lessons. He was forced to leave school again to go to Childrens Memorial Hospital for post-polio treatments.

But thanks to the homebound teaching program in Omaha, Keith is getting special attention at the hospital.

Mrs. Lucille Stilwell comes to the hospital three times a week for a 45-minute teaching session with the eight-year-old.

pupils we call on in the hospitals and the homes," Mrs. Stilwell said. "Of course, the big advantage is that we are able to give our undivided attention to a single pupil.

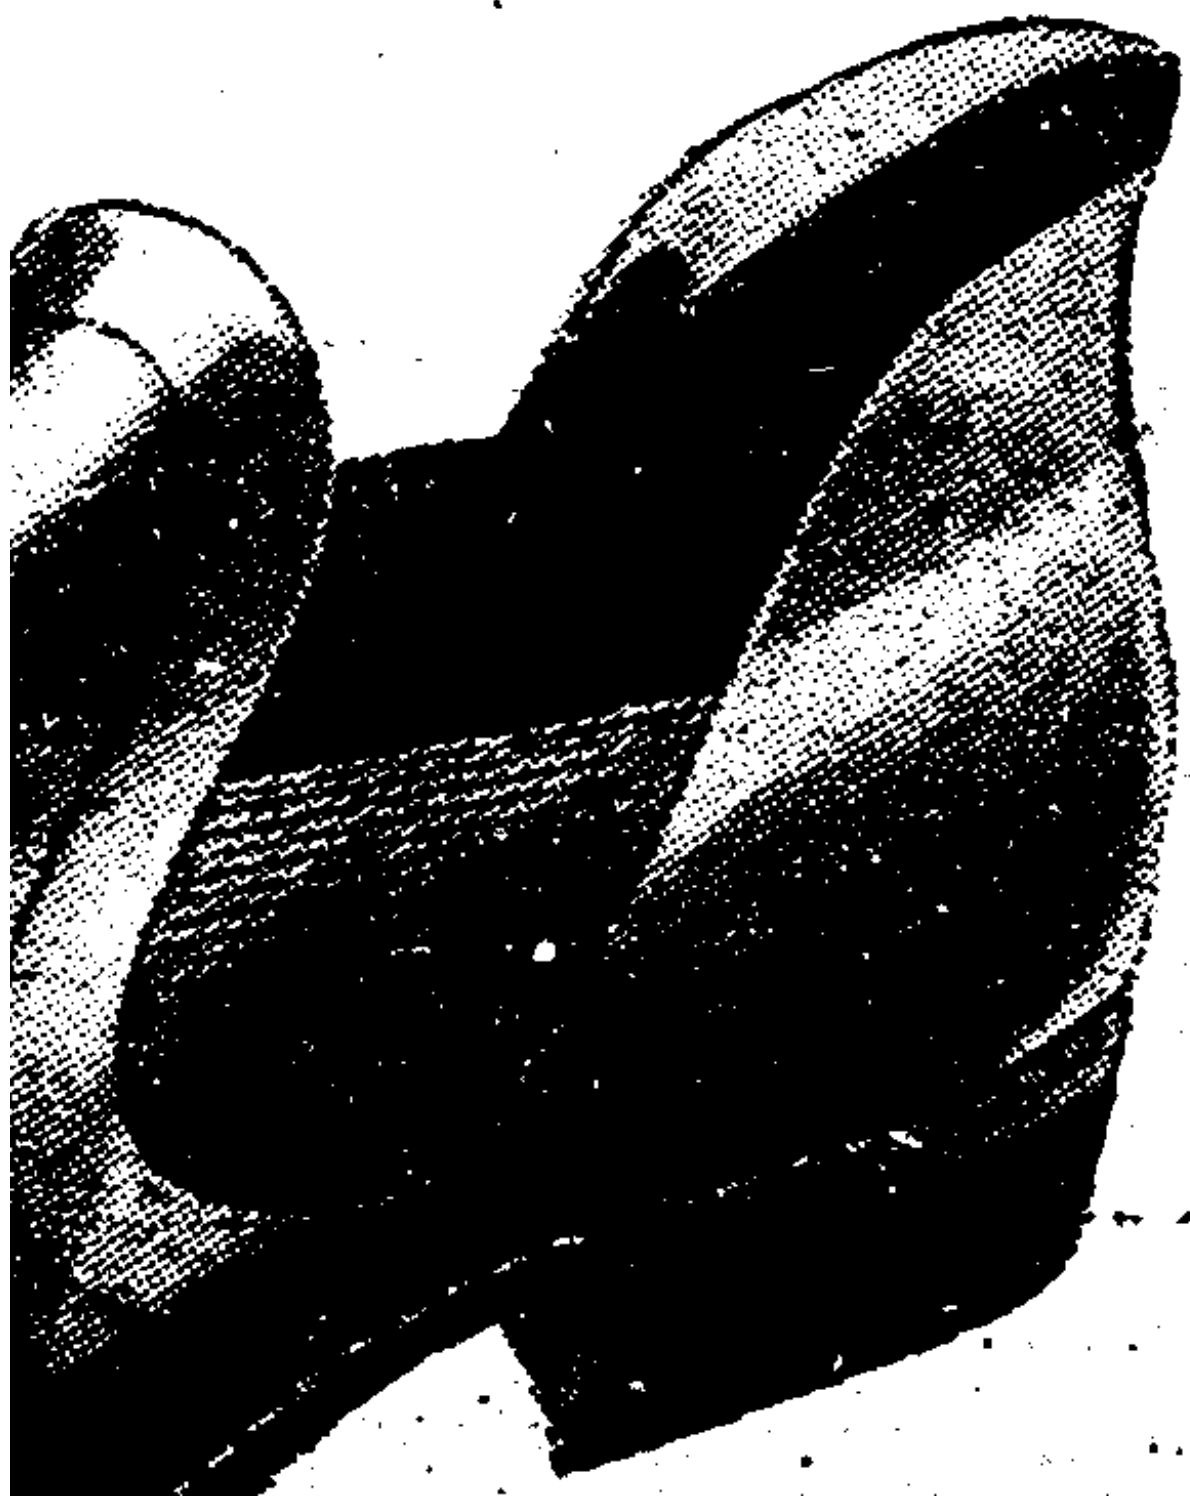

"Because of that we are often able to put our finger on the particular study fault that is troubling a youngster."

The homebound teaching staff operates under the Board of Education.

Keith lives with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon McGill at 2724 Lake Street.
